1. Begin your abstract with a problem statement/ research gap.
2. In the abstract, before finding, add your research methodology.
3. The whole article needs to be proofread.
4. The discussion part is too surface. Please detail it out by discussing the similarities/ differences with previous studies

Reviewer B

Reviewer B's comments are as follows:

In introduction parts, it needs more elaboration about the significance of the study. No need to mention the answer of the research question. It can be written in the results and discussion. To make more fruitful discussion, author can add the factor of that caused the profile resulted from the study
