Title and Abstract

Title Perubahan Preferensi Penghuni Terhadap Aspek Lingkungan Pada Perumahan Rawa Urug

Abstract Palembang is a river city that its land is dominated by lowland. In its initial development, the settlement was built based on adaptation to the nature of lowland area such as riverbanks and marsh. Along with the increasing population, the settlements including housing area has spread from landed to lowland area. Many housing areas are developed on the reclaimed low lying land. The problem has arisen when the flood happened in this housing area. The flood has affected residents' well-being and image of housing area as elite estate. The aim of this paper is to evaluate the preference of residents on the environment of housing on the reclaimed lowland area. To achieve this aim, the study examines the change of preference of residents on three aspects; housing attributes, renovation and infrastructure quality. The study used quantitative method. Data were collected by survey questionnaire from 150
