ABSTRACT

This study discusses about the transformation of religious and social character values in students learning SD Plus IGM Palembang. The method used is a qualitative approach with empirical inductive strategy, which starts with the data collected from teachers and students based on real experience. The process of transforming the values of religious character learning students through the involvement of parents, expert speakers, learning activities, memorization, and peer tutor. The process of transforming social character values is carried out from the teacher to students and students to students. The results of the transformation of the values of religious characters are shown by students by praying every time they start and end their activities. In addition, students perform Dhuha prayers and Zuhur prayers in congregation which are held in 3 stages. Some students also take the Takhosus Class which memorizes the Alquran jus 30. The results of the transformation of social character values are shown by students by giving a smile, greetings, and courtesy. Both students to teachers and students to other students. The classroom is also filled with wise words to remind students to always be kind to the people around them by not discriminating against race, religion, and ethnicity.
